

ASSOCIATION FOR INDIA'S DEVELOPMENT MIT & BOSTON CHAPTERS

मेला 2009
art. culture. peace

MIT, ROCKWELL CAGE
OCT 11, 2009 (3-10 PM)
www.shantimela.org

Workshop: Green Living

About the Workshop:

Be part of the solution - Educate and empower yourself
- Save the environment & your $$

This workshop will be a discussion on what does it mean to be green in practical terms as a group.

Themes of water, energy, waste, chemicals in our homes, travel options, environment, traditional and sustainable methods of living will be explored.

Since sustainable development is an important idea for us, a lot of AID volunteers think of our personal ecological footprint and we feel that a two way dialogue is important to explore such topics with the community at large.

Profile: This workshop will be conducted by AID Volunteers.

4:00—4:40pm

FREE WORKSHOP

Other Programs in the Festival:

Music workshops, dance workshops, peace workshops, art contest, photo exhibits, delicious food, indoor games, kids activities, peace mural painting, performances, community dance (garba-dandiya) and much more..

Association for India's Development is a volunteer movement promoting sustainable, equitable and just development. AID supports grassroots organizations in India and initiates efforts in various interconnected spheres such as agriculture, energy, education, health, livelihoods, natural resources including land and water, women's empowerment and social justice. More information about us at www.aidboston.org or www.aidindia.org.